

Plaster and restoration handoff

Dry-to-Finish Handoff

For plasterers and restoration businesses handing over a dry, remediated and paint-ready area for final painting.

WHO THIS HANDOFF SUITS

Plasterers and restoration businesses whose upstream repair, remediation and plaster work is complete.

THE HANDOFF PROBLEM

It gives the customer a clear next step for final painting without asking the partner to transfer customer details, photos or documents.

HOW THE HANDOFF WORKS

- 1. Confirm readiness The responsible trade or customer confirms the leak is fixed, remediation is complete, the area is dry and the plaster is ready.
- 2. Share this page or QR Give the customer this page so they can review the painting boundary at their own pace.
- 3. Customer contacts Pars The customer chooses whether to contact Pars and provides their own project details and consent.
- 4. Pars reviews the paint scope Pars reviews the visible painting work and asks for any information needed to decide the next step.
- 5. Quote and schedule if suitable If the area is ready and the work is suitable, Pars provides a written painting scope before scheduling.

WITHIN THE QUOTED PAINTING SCOPE

- Protection within the agreed painting work area.
- Preparation, primer and finish coats only as stated in the written quote.
- Clean-down and a documented painting handover for the quoted areas.

OUTSIDE THE PAINTING SCOPE

- Leak detection or leak repair.
- Moisture testing, dryness certification or clearance.
- Mould assessment or mould remediation.
- Asbestos identification, testing or removal.
- Structural diagnosis or structural repairs.
- Insurance assessment, coverage decisions or claims handling.
- Plastering, rendering or remediation work.

IMPORTANT LIMITS

Pars is engaged for the quoted painting work only. If the area appears wet, unsafe or not paint-ready, the painting review may pause until the responsible trade or specialist confirms it is ready.

CUSTOMER-CONTROLLED NEXT STEP

Share this sheet, page or QR with the customer. The customer contacts Pars directly and provides their own details and consent.
